Ukraine hosts biggest-ever gay pride parade

Ukrainian President and former comedian Volodymyr Zelenskiy has promoted a more tolerant culture.

REUTERS

Ukrainian politicians and foreign diplomats joined thousands marching in a gay pride parade in Kiev on Sunday, the biggest and most peaceful ever in the former Soviet country.

Crowds of people, many dressed in bright colors, paraded along streets in the center of the Ukrainian capital, holding up banners saying, "Diversity is beautiful," "Human rights = happy country," "No violence — yes rights!"

They were flanked by a thick cordon of police in helmets but there was no sign of violence despite the presence of a few hundred protesters.

Sunday's march in Kiev was part of Pride Month, celebrated by lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people around the world.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy, a former comedian who took office last month, has promoted a tolerant culture, saying he stands for all people's equality and freedom.

"Our desire is to convey to a majority of people that LGBT is normality," Eduard, a 17-year-old tattoo artist, told Reuters.

"I am taking part for the fifth time. Ukraine is making significant progress compared to previous years. Security and organization are much better."

Zelenskiy's office urged the police to prevent violence and guarantee the safety of participants in the March of Equality.

"Ukraine's Constitution states that citizens have equal constitutional rights and freedoms," it said in a post on its Facebook page on Sunday morning.

> "Our desire is to convey to a majority of people that LGBT is normality."

Ruslana Panukhnyk, one of the organizers of the capital's annual gay pride march, told journalists after the event that about 8,000 people had attended it, far more than 5,000 last year.

"We are satisfied with the cooperation with the police. There were some small incidents, but no injuries," she said.

"The most important [thing] for us is human rights."

Under Western-backed leadership, Ukraine's parliament passed legislation in 2015 to ban discrimination in the workplace as part of a series of laws Ukraine needed to pass to qualify for a visa-free travel agreement with the European Union.

"Thank you to the police and other law enforcement agencies for protecting today's Pride event in Kiev," Judith Gough, the British ambassador to Ukraine who joined the march, wrote in a tweet.

She posted pictures of herself and other Western ambassadors who participated in the event.

William B. Taylor, charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy in Ukraine, wrote in a tweet: "We stand with all Ukrainians striving for equality and non-discrimination."

The government has increased support for LGBT rights since a Western-backed leadership came to power in 2014, but critics say homophobic attitudes remain relatively widespread.

Sunday's march was a far cry from violent clashes witnessed at the same event in 2015, but protesters also made their voices heard. REUTERS

Former US Congressman Sestak joins prez race

2 Former U.S. Rep. Joe Sestak said on Sunday that he would seek the Democratic nomination for president, becoming the party's 25th candidate in the 2020 election. In announcing his candidacy, Sestak, 67, a retired three-star U.S. Navy admiral, emphasized his 31-year military career, the need to restore U.S. leadership in the world and challenges from climate change and China's growing global influence. "Our country desperately needs a president with a depth of global experience and an understanding of all the elements of our nation's power, from our economy and our diplomacy to the power of our ideals and our military, including its limitations," Sestak said. He warned of the dangers of China's influence, from its "virtual monopoly" in high-technology manufacturing supply chains to its Belt and Road infrastructure drive. REUTERS

Ethiopia's army chief, 3 others killed in failed coup

3 Ethiopia's army chief of staff and the head of the northern state of Amhara were killed in two separate but related attacks when a general tried to seize control of Amhara in an attempted coup, the prime minister's office said on Sunday. Amhara state president Ambachew Mekonnen and his adviser were shot dead and the state's attorney general was wounded in the regional capital of Bahir Dar on Saturday evening, Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed's office said in a statement. In a separate attack the same night, Ethiopia's army Chief of Staff Seare Mekonnen and a retired general were both shot dead in Seare's home in Addis Ababa by his bodyguard. The two attacks were linked, the statement said, without giving details. Abiy's office named Amhara state security head General Asamnew Tsige as responsible for the foiled coup, without giving details of his whereabouts. REUTERS

Did You Know?

Wrongful death claims are brought against a person who has caused someone's death either negligently or intentionally.

Wrongful death claims allow the estate of the deceased person to sue the party who is responsible. The suit is usually filed by a representative of the estate, on behalf of surviving family members. A survival claim is brought by the estate for the damages the deceased person would be entitled if they had lived, such as the pain the deceased suffered from the time of negligence through death.

Wrongful death and survival claims can occur in a variety of situations, including medical malpractice and accidents. If a doctor or other health care provider was careless, and death resulted, an action can be brought. Car accident fatalities involving negligence can be wrongful death, if a victim dies as a result of injuries caused by another driver's carelessness.

These are just a few examples of personal injury cases that are wrongful death/survival claims. A wrongful death/survival claim can stem from almost any kind of personal injury situation resulting in death.

Spouses, children, and other dependents may suffer from financial loss and emotional stress caused by the wrongful death of a loved one. Family members often can recover for a wrongful death from the harm left behind by an accidental death.

If you have lost a loved one due to another's carelessness or negligence, call us at 215-569-1212 to explore whether you may have the right to recover full compensation for your loss.

Unit at Philly oil refinery destroyed in daylong fire

The fire, which began Friday, was extinguished on Saturday.

The alkylation unit involved in a massive fire on Friday at Philadelphia Energy Solutions Inc.'s oil refinery has been completely destroyed, which will hamper the supply of gasoline from the U.S. East Coast's largest refinery, sources familiar with the matter said on Sunday.

The destruction of the unit, coupled with damage from the fire that ripped through the 335,000 barrel-per-day (bpd) refining complex, could force the plant to remain shut for an extended period.

The fire, which began in a tank and involved several explosions that sent a huge fireball into the sky, engulfing the surrounding areas in smoke early on Friday morning, was extinguished Saturday afternoon, the Philadelphia Fire Department said on Sunday in a statement.

The gas valve that had been fueling the fire was shut off, and the tank involved in the blaze was isolated, the fire department said.

The department's hazmat unit and Philadelphia's Department of Public Health continued to monitor the air quality around the refinery.

A source familiar with plant operations said one explosion occurred at the 30,000 bpd alkylation unit that uses hydrofluoric acid (HF), one of the deadliest chemicals in the refining business and a source of controversy for its use to make high-octane gasoline at refineries located in densely populated areas.

Hydrofluoric acid can form a toxic cloud at room temperature, with exposure leading to severe health problems and even death.

Philadelphia Energy Solutions did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Philadelphia Deputy Fire Commissioner Craig Murphy said in a press conference on Friday that the cause of the fire was unclear.

Federal officials including the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the U.S. Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board on Monday will begin an investigation into the cause and origin of the fire, according to the fire department statement.

Four workers were injured and treated on-site, according to a company statement, while city emergency workers treated one person, who did not need to go to a hospital.

The fire comes as the company has faced financial headwinds. Philadelphia Energy Solutions emerged from bankruptcy last year, after filing because of the costs of complying with the U.S. Renewable Fuel Standard, a 2005 law that requires refiners to either blend biofuels into their product or purchase credits from competitors who do. Iran warns of risk of conflict, Trump sees scope for deal

The president told "Meet the Press" he's "not looking for war."

President Donald Trump said on Sunday he was not seeking war with Tehran after a senior Iranian military commander warned any conflict in the Gulf region could spread uncontrollably and threaten the lives of U.S. troops.

Tensions remain high between longtime foes Iran and the United States after Trump said on Friday that he called off a military strike to retaliate for Iran's downing of an unmanned U.S. drone out of concern it would have been a disproportionate response.

"I'm not looking for war," Trump said on NBC's "Meet the Press" program.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo repeated to reporters on Sunday that Washington was prepared to negotiate with Tehran with no preconditions.

"They know precisely where to find us," said Pompeo, who was traveling to Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to "ensure we're strategically aligned" with those countries, which are regional rivals of Iran.

Trump has said he will impose further sanctions on Iran beginning on Monday, but has also indicated that he would be prepared to seek a deal to bolster its flagging economy, an apparent move to defuse tensions.

"I think they want to negotiate. And I think they want to make a deal. And my deal is nuclear. Look, they're not going to have a nuclear weapon," he added.

"I don't think they like the position they're in. Their economy is, is absolutely broken."

Iran played down the impact of any new U.S. sanctions. They were "just propaganda, as all sanctions ... have been imposed and there are no more sanctions left," state-run news agency IRIB quoted Foreign Ministry spokesman Abbas Mousavi as saying.

Iran denies seeking nuclear weapons and refers to a fatwa or religious decree issued in the early 2000s by Iran's top authority Ayatollah Ali Khamenei that bans the development or use of nuclear weapons.

Last year Trump withdrew the United States from a 2015 accord between Iran and world powers that curbed Tehran's nuclear program in exchange for easing sanctions. Relations in the region have worsened significantly since then.

DIPLOMACY

Diplomatic efforts are underway to ease tensions following attacks on oil tankers in the Gulf in recent weeks that the United States blames on Iran and the shooting down of the American drone last week.

Andrew Murrison, Britain's minister for the Middle East and North Africa, said on Sunday that he had "open, frank and constructive" talks with Iranian government representatives in Tehran.

"I reiterated the U.K.'s assessment that Iran almost certainly bears responsibility for recent attacks on tankers in the Gulf of Oman," and called for such activity to stop, Murrison said.

A senior adviser to Khamenei said Iran may scale back compliance with its nuclear deal soon unless European countries shield it from U.S. sanctions through a trade mechanism.

"If Europeans don't take measures within the 60-day deadline, we will take new steps," the semi-official ISNA news agency quoted the official, Kamal Kharazi, as saying. Tehran announced a deadline of 60 days in May. REUTERS

Trump: Naming Jeff Sessions AG was 'biggest mistake'

President Donald Trump said on Sunday that if he could have one "do-over," it would be "personnel" decisions, including naming former Sen. Jeff Sessions as his first U.S. attorney general.

"I would say if I had one do-over, it would be, I would not have appointed Jeff Sessions to be attorney general. ... That was the biggest mistake," Trump said in an interview aired on Sunday with NBC's "Meet the Press."

After almost three years of investigations, Trump's presidency is still clouded by questions surrounding Russian interference to boost his candidacy in the 2016 U.S. elections and his subsequent efforts to impede inquiries into the matter.

Sessions, formerly a Republican senator from Alabama, was one of the earliest Trump administration casualties of the Russian election meddling scandal, which continues to be investigated by committees of the U.S. Congress.

In February 2016, Sessions became the first serving senator to endorse Trump when the New York reality TV star and real estate developer was still a presidential candidate.

Russian intelligence organizations a month later began a cyber campaign aimed at interfering with the 2016 presidential election, according to U.S. intelligence agencies.

During the campaign, Sessions, a close Trump adviser, met with Russian Ambassador Sergei Kislyak. Several others in Trump's inner circle met with Russians during this period, too.

In late July 2016, the FBI began investigating Russian meddling in the election.

After Trump's stunning election victory, Sessions was rewarded for his loyalty by being nominated as the top U.S. law enforcement official and head of the Justice Department.

In January 2017 in Senate confirmation hearings, Sessions said that during the campaign he had no communication with Russians. A month later, he was confirmed as attorney general.

Only two months afterward, Sessions' campaign ties to Kislyak were reported. Democrats accused him of lying to Congress.

In March 2017, Sessions recused himself from the ongoing investigation into Russian interference in the elections, infuriating Trump, who thereafter frequently attacked Sessions.

In May 2017, Special Counsel Robert Mueller was appointed to take over the Russia probe from the FBI. REUTERS

Migrants describe Mexican detention centers as Trump ratchets up pressure

Food and water have become scarce and detainees have access to limited health care.

Mexico's immigration centers are becoming increasingly squalid and overcrowded as authorities step up the detention of migrants headed for the United States, with inmates languishing for weeks amid medical neglect, according to detainees, lawyers and rights groups.

Reuters spoke to more than a dozen recent detainees at the Siglo XXI detention center, the country's largest. They described being held in the facility in Chiapas state on Mexico's southern border for long periods without information about their cases.

The detainees reported severe overcrowding, sparse water and food, and limited health care.

Their accounts were supported by two lawyers representing 26 other inmates, as well as the migration ombudsman at Mexico's National Human Rights Commission and reports from two migrant-rights groups: Fray Matias de Cordova and the Human Rights Observation Mission for the Refugee and Humanitarian Crisis in Southeast Mexico, a collective of 24 aid groups.

Twelve of the detainees told Reuters they were held for at least three weeks in the center, meant to hold people for a maximum of 15 days until their cases are processed.

Mexico's National Immigration Institute (INM), which runs Siglo XXI, did not respond to repeated requests for comment on conditions at the center.

Asked about the extended detentions, an INM official, who asked not to be identified, said migrant cases were complex and needed to be analyzed on an individual basis.

Guards at the gates of the center declined to answer questions or to allow a Reuters reporter to speak with its director.

DETENTION NUMBERS TRIPLE

President Donald Trump made a crackdown on illegal migration the flagship policy of his 2016 election campaign.

Struggling to get the funds from Congress to build a border wall, and with a significant uptick in Central Americans seeking asylum, he threatened trade tariffs unless Mexico plugged leaks south of the U.S. border.

In response, Mexico has increased detentions. During the first five months of this year, it has tripled the number of migrants it detained monthly to reach 23,679 in May, according to unpublished government data seen by Reuters.

That has strained its underfunded network of centers, which already had a reputation for poor conditions.

Foreigners stopped by Mexican authorities without valid documents can be held in detention while they await transit visas or regularization of their situation. Edgar Corzo, the migration ombudsman, said that process is meant to take no more than 15 days.

Thousands have passed this year through the gates of Siglo XXI, which Corzo and the migrant-rights groups said had been at or near double its 970-person capacity for months.

All the people spoken to for this story said detainees slept on thin mattresses or none at all in corridors and bathrooms because of lack of space in cells. REUTERS

Aries Go over your options and consider what's in your best interest. If change is what you want, make sure your motives are based on more than your desire to make a point.

Taurus Home and self-improvements are featured. Promote positive change and cost-efficient options. Get approval before you begin certain projects.

Gemini Keep tabs on what others are doing or saying. Someone may try to undermine you or take credit for something you did. Stay in the loop to avoid being left out.

Cancer Update your resume or look for options that will allow you to use your skills creatively. Take hold of your life and nurture important relationships.

Leo Take a look at what's going on around you before you start something new. Being aware of what others want will help you avoid an unexpected and unwanted reaction.

Virgo Positive change can be made. Call in help for a difficult domestic or personal situation. Stay positive and push forward.

Libra IThere is much going on that you aren't aware of. Before you make a decision, find out how others feel about your concerns and plans.

Scorpio Participate in something you believe in. Your intuition will help you find a robust solution. If you use your power of persuasion, you'll have an impact on the changes that take place.

Sagittarius You'll be deprived of the recognition you want. Keep a low profile and stay out of the line of fire. This is not the time to exaggerate or be misleading.

Capricorn You will be anxious to get on with your plans. Your vision will inspire others to contribute, turning your idea into a bigger and better project than you anticipated. A partnership looks promising.

Aquarius Deal with issues that concern home, family or health. How you handle your time and money will affect the way others react to the choices you make.

Pisces Refuse to let an emotional incident lead you astray. Too much of anything will be counterproductive. Focus on what's doable and what has the potential to make a difference. EUGENIA LAST

Jose Garces' stunning new restaurant Stella is open for dinner

This is the Iron Chef's first eatery in Bucks County.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

Iron Chef Jose Garces' vision of a romantic farm-to-table restaurant comes to life in New Hope.

With river views and outdoor dining, new restaurant Stella is perfect for date nights and more. Sip cocktails and enjoy a selection of spreads with house-made breads on the riverside patio, or sit down for dinner in the country-chic dining room. The restaurant's American cuisine highlights local food artisans and producers, whom Garces is very connected to. Though he is known for his restaurants and hospitality group in Philly, the James Beard Award-winning chef spends a lot of time in Bucks County at his own Luna Farm in Ottsville. His team at the farm grows organic vegetables and produces honey.

"The fresh air, natural beauty, and the quiet return to nature have always been sources of inspiration to me while spending time in Bucks County," said Garces in a press release.

It was only a matter of time before Garces opened a restaurant in Bucks County. Stella is part of a thriving dining and arts scene as the in-house restaurant for the recently renovated Ghost Light Inn. Conveniently located next door to Bucks County Playhouse, the restaurant and hotel are right in the middle of New Hope's main stretch of bars, art galleries and entertainment. The restaurant celebrates the neighboring theater with its cocktail list, with names like the "Preshow" Aperol spritz with grapefruit and "Intermission," a sweet and smoky scotch drink with pineapple syrup.

After his restaurant group partnered with New Orleans-based Ballard Brands in 2017, Garces focused on spending more time in his restaurants' kitchens and developing menus as the company's chief culinary officer. Stella's dinner menu combines fresh, sophisticated flavors with a few fun classics. The chicken & dumplings entree ($19) is made with spinach gnocchi and a celery root cream; and don't miss the spaghetti pie for two with black truffle ($18). If you're in the mood for something more indulgent, try the Wagyu skirt steak ($32) with charred strawberries, broccoli rabe and black pepper caramel.

Dinner at Stella is all about treating yourself, including ordering dessert. Chocolate lovers will feel right at home ordering the dark chocolate fondant with coffee mousseline and mascarpone ($8), or the s'mores with white chocolate ganache and dark chocolate cream ($9) . If you're too stuffed to have your own dessert, split a plate of the ricotta fritters with honeycomb, orange blossom honey and mint ($9). You'll thank yourself later.

Stella (50 S. Main St., New Hope) is open 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 4 p.m. to midnight on Fridays and Saturdays. For full menus and other information, visit stellanewhope.com.

5 Fun things to do in Philly this week

Test your "Stranger Things" knowledge.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

Looking for some fun and unique things to do in Philly this week? We've got you covered.

Balboa Meets Lacroix Supper Club
Chef Alex Garfinkel's Balboa Catering is teaming up with Chef Eric Leveillee of Lacroix, along with Evil Genius Beer Company, for another delicious edition of Headhouse Square's Supper Club. Pre-dinner snacks include aged steak tartare, Fat Cat gougerre, and fried sourdough and foie gras torchon followed by the enticing five-course meal prepared by Garfinkel and Leveillee. Dinner will feature grilled High Street on Market's anadama bread; North Carolina shrimp; pork ribs; a 15-day aged Wagyu coulotte with jet black sunchoke truffle puree; and a delightful Spruce mousse for dessert. Each dish will be paired with an Evil Genius beer and live music will be provided by Jeff Alexander. Sue Miller, a cheese guru from Birch-run Hills Farm, will also be the guest speaker. June 26, 6:30 p.m., The Shambles at Headhouse Square, 2nd & Pine streets, $95, balboacatering.com

"Science After Hours: Pride"
The Franklin Institute is featuring another exciting Science After Hours event this week, and this month's edition will focus on Pride. This exciting evening will feature hands-on science activities, interactive talks about sex and gender with Timaree Schmit, local drag performers paired with Franklin Institute science interpreters for over-the-top science demonstrations, interactive and colorful experiments, a rainbow ball pit explosion, make-and-take individualized DNA bracelets and personal Pride flags, classic hits being spun by DJ Robert Drake and much more. This event is for anyone 21+.

'Those who do covers of Toto are nothing foolish' BOBBY KIMBALL

Metro chatted with the legendary singer best known as the original and longtime frontman of the rock band Toto.

JOSE BARRETO, MWN
letters@metro.us

GETTY

"I love to sing in high tonalities, and that's why I love to sing the songs of Toto. I have so much fun that I've scheduled quite a few concerts this year. You would not believe it!"

Your voice is one of the most iconic and recognizable within the rock scene.
I started singing when I was 5 years old. And the tone of my voice has not changed much since then [laughs]. I love to sing in high tonalities, and that's why I love to sing the songs of Toto. I have so much fun that I've scheduled quite a few concerts this year. You would not believe it!

Do you take special care of your voice?
No alcohol, no drugs, no cigarettes, many liters of water a day and rest. That keeps my voice in shape and in high tonalities.

Recently, the band Weezer released a cover of Toto's "Africa." Rapper Pitbull did the same. Have you heard them? have not heard those covers, but throughout my career I've known hundreds of bands and even well-known orchestras who have done it. Those who do covers of Toto are nothing foolish, because they know they will have an immediate success.

Those songs became a classic. If you could pick just one, which is your favorite Toto album?
"Toto IV." We recorded it in 1981 and released in 1982. We did a one-year tour around the world, and when we got back to Los Angeles they called us from the Grammys and they informed us that the album had eight nominations. We won six of them. It did not feel so bad [laughs].

'Stranger Things': Fashion comes to Hawkins

The cast of the Netflix series has participated in high-end fashion campaigns and editorials. Now some brands are releasing capsule collections inspired by the series.

LUZ LANCHEROS
letters@metro.us

When "Stranger Things "premiered in 2016, it caused world madness: not only because of its scientific conspiracy/child with mental powers/gang of children that saves the world + monsters plot but because it appealed enormously to that '80s nostalgia. This, of course, included its costumes and hairstyles, especially Steve's. The phenomenon grew so much that even Vogue and other fashion magazines made garment guides based on the characters from the series. But as "Stranger Things" continued to gain more and more popularity, major brands began to sign its cast starting with Millie Bobby Brown to appear on red carpets and editorials.

Her castmates soon followed, and brands have not been slow to create their own lines inspired by the show, especially with season three approaching. These are the hits that have made major fashion brands keep tuned to the series.

July 4

season 3 of "Stranger Things" will be released. This time the series is set in 1985.

MILLIE BOBBY BROWN: FROM ELEVEN TO FASHION ICON

With 19 million followers on Instagram she stood out immediately attending awards ceremonies dressed by top designers like Calvin Klein. She now sits in the first row at fashion shows debuting at Coach Spring Summer 2017. At 15, Brown has participated in other projects, such as the remake of "Godzilla" polishing her style, which has been criticized in the past for being overly sexualized or making her appear older than she is. Dressed by Michael Kors, Jenny Packham, Armani and Kate Spade, as well as Oscar de la Renta for red carpets, Brown has done editorials for Interview, W Magazine, Vogue and for brands such as Moncler.

The actress is an ambassador for Calvin Klein. | GETTY IMAGES

"Mike" also modeled for Pull & Bear | SAINT LAURENT

HER GANG IS QUICK TO FOLLOW

Finn Wolfhart, Millie's love interest in the series, has also had his appearances as the "cool kid." He had a very popular participation with the rest of the gang in "Lipsync Battle," but it was Mike Wheeler who signed with St. Laurent for its autumn/winter campaign, in a very Bob Dylanish style, honoring the aesthetics of Anthony Vaccarello. For his part, "bad boy" Bill Hargrove (played by Dacre Montgomery) shows all his attributes in a very '80s H&M capsule collection.

US national team meets Spain in World Cup knockout stage today

A rising Spain side is the United States' test in the Round of 16 at the Women's World Cup.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The U.S. women's national team swept through Thailand, Chile and Sweden during the group stage. GETTY IMAGES

The stakes are about to rise.

After rolling through Group F, the United States women's national team faces Spain in the Round of 16 at the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup today.

After the group stage eliminated eight teams, the Round of 16 commences the knockout stage which is a single-elimination format. One loss and your hopes at the World Cup are dashed.

The U.S. has a limited history with Spain, playing them only once before. That came on Jan. 22, in a friendly which the U.S. won, 1-0.

Here are three things to watch for as the United States plays for a spot in the quarterfinals:

DECISIONS, DECISIONS

The U.S. lived up to its billing as the most powerful women's soccer team on the planet, setting records throughout the group stage while dominating its opponents.

In three games, the Americans posted 18 goals — including a record 13-0 beatdown over Thailand in the competition's opener. The historic effort was followed up by a 3-0 win over Chile and a 2-0 triumph over a Sweden team that was the largest threat in the group.

The goal-fest that was the group stage further confirmed the United States' embarrassment of riches up front.

A stacked set of forwards features six world-class talents in Alex Morgan, Tobin Heath, Carli Lloyd, Megan Rapinoe, Christen Press and Mallory Pugh.

Morgan is tied for the tournament lead with five goals, all of them coming against Thailand.

Playing a 4-3-3 scheme, the depth of talent poses quite a challenge for manager Jill Ellis as she can only pick half of that list to start. Putting its top lineup against Sweden on Thursday, she started Morgan, Heath and Rapinoe to start the game.

Heath provided the game's second and final goal, but Morgan and Rapinoe were given problems by the defensive-minded Swedes. It forced Ellis to substitute Lloyd, Heath and Press in the second half to try and vary the Americans' attack.

If the lack of execution against Sweden isn't sitting well with Ellis — or if Morgan isn't 100 percent healthy after picking up a knock — look for her to mix and match the front line.

THE ERTZ FACTOR

A hip injury forced Julie Ertz to miss the Group F finale against Sweden and her absence was felt.

Ertz has carved her niche as a versatile defensive presence for the Americans, playing as both a center back and holding midfielder.

She's also developed into an overwhelming threat on set pieces, as seen with her impressive header of a goal off a free kick against Chile.

With Ertz unavailable, Ellis was forced to play Lindsey Horan as the holding midfielder while Becky Sauerbrunn and Abby Dahlkemper continued their roles at center back.

Alongside Crystal Dunn and Kelley O'Hara, the back line of the U.S. did look shaky at times against Sweden, who generated its offensive chances via the counterattack. It was that same tactic that eliminated the United States in the quarterfinals of the 2016 Summer Olympics, providing a blueprint for the rest of the world on how to beat the Americans.

Expect Spain to replicate that style of play. With a talented set of young stars, Ertz's presence will be vital to stymie the underdogs.

THE GREAT HERMOSO

If there is one name that the Americans must keep an eye on, it's Spain's star striker Jennifer Hermoso.

The 29-year-old, who plays her club soccer at Atletico Madrid, has been the heartbeat of La Roja for the majority of the World Cup schedule.

During European qualifying, she recorded seven goals before tallying two during Spain's World Cup opener against South Africa earlier this month.

It's upped her impressive record for Spain to 30 goals in 71 caps.

She is going to be the main target of Spain's counterattack as defenders will bomb the ball toward her to alleviate pressure put on by the Americans. Given Hermoso's strength and deadly ability within the final third, the United States' defense will be facing its most gifted striker of the tournament yet.

Sports betting 101: Live in-game betting

SugarHouse Casino's sportsbook manager dishes out the basics of sports betting.

JIM LLEWELLYN

Jim Llewellyn is the sportsbook manager at SugarHouse Casino.

GETTY IMAGES

One area of sports betting that has been rapidly gaining in popularity is live in-game betting.

The SugarHouse online sportsbook at MetroBet.us/Sugar features an abundance of live in-game betting options, one of which we'll highlight here today.

Last week, the Netherlands faced Canada in a Women's World Cup match. Before the showdown started, here were the odds:

Netherlands (+160) vs.
Canada (+175)

The Netherlands controlled play throughout much of the match and held a 2-1 lead late in the event. At the 79-minute mark of a 90-minute match, here were the odds:

Netherlands (-590) vs.
Canada (+4,000)

In soccer, there is also the option of betting on a tie. At this moment, the odds for a tie were +480 — meaning that if you bet $100 on the tie with just 10 minutes left, and Canada scored a late goal, and the match ended in a draw, you would win $480.

To highlight how quickly the odds change in live in-game betting, here is what the odds were on the match just three minutes later, during the 82nd minute of the 90-minute affair:

Netherlands (-715) vs.
Canada (+5,500), Tie (+550)

At the 89th minute of the game, 10 game minutes after we initially checked, the odds were:

Netherlands (-1667) vs.
Canada (+25,000), Tie (+1,000)

Live in-game betting is so popular because bettors can often see in real time what type of momentum a team or player has. If you can spot that momentum, you can take advantage of the changing odds in real time.

To bet now, go to MetroBet.us/Sugar and get up to $250 in a first-deposit match bonus by using promo code METROBET.

Phillies vs. Mets game pick

Mets starter Steven Matz (5-5, 4.28 ERA) will look to exorcise some demons when he returns to Citizens Bank Park to face the Phillies on Monday night. He was charged with six earned runs while failing to record an out at the Phillies' home ballpark on April 16. Jake Arrieta (6-6, 4.12 ERA), whom the Mets have had some success against in the past, counters for Philadelphia.

To bet on this game now, go to MetroBet.us/Sugar.

Matz already atoned for that disastrous April 16 outing to some extent, holding the Phillies to one run on three hits at Citi Field on April 22. He's previously done well against the big boppers in the heart of Philadelphia's order, specifically right fielder Bryce Harper and first baseman Rhys Hoskins. Harper has only four hits in 19 prior at-bats against the Long Island native, while Hoskins has just a pair of hits in 13 encounters (albeit they were both home runs).

Several New York hitters will be happy to see Arrieta on the hill. Third baseman Todd Frazier, catcher Wilson Ramos and utility man Jeff McNeil are a combined 20-for-49 (.408) against the well-traveled native of Missouri.

Big betting opportunities: USA–Spain

MATT BURKE

Matt Burke is a veteran sports journalist and the Founder and Editor in Chief of MetroBet.

Get excited, Philly! Legal online sports betting has finally arrived and you can bet from the comfort of your couch right now with MetroBet!

MetroBet readers in Pennsylvania can get an exclusive $250 free deposit match bonus right now by going to MetroBet.us/Sugar. Enter promo code METROBET to take advantage of this exciting offer!

MetroBet.us/Sugar has a variety of odds available on the Women's World Cup, including today's Spain vs. USA showdown. Here are the latest odds:

Spain +800 vs. USA -278

The odds for a tie are set at +370 with the total currently set at 2.5 goals scored. The over is -108 with the Under at -121.

The level of competition the U.S. will face today with Spain is on par with Sweden. The USWNT only managed two goals against Sweden, but they should be boosted by the returns of Alex Morgan and Julie Ertz — two of the best bets to find the back of the net.

MetroBet.us/Sugar has a prop bet available on who will score the first goal of today's game. Here are those odds:

Alex Morgan +300
Tobin Heath +320
Carli Lloyd +325
Jessica McDonald +340
Christen Press +340
Mallory Pugh +375
Megan Rapinoe +410
Julie Ertz +700

GETTY IMAGES

Now that we're in the round of 16, we also have a chance to look at updated futures odds at MetroBet.us/Sugar for which team will win the tournament:

USA +160
France +400
Germany +550
England +725
Netherlands +1200
Canada +2000
Norway +2300
Italy +3500

It's difficult to say what has been more impressive by the U.S. women so far in the tournament, the fact that they have not allowed a single goal in their three games played or the fact that they have racked up 18 goals total.

You can bet on the Women's World Cup and more right now at MetroBet.us/Sugar by entering promo code METROBET. By doing so, you can get up to $250 in free deposit match money!

Bet smart on soccer: USA vs. Spain betting preview

Betting markets see Spain as very similar in quality to Sweden, the most recent victim of the USWNT. The closing line will likely finish near last Thursday's prices. The U.S. will be laying just over a goal, with odds suggesting a win in regulation at least 71 percent of the time, advancing through to the quarters well over 80 percent of the time. If you throw out cakewalks vs. Thailand and Chile (whom the market rated as the two worst teams in the field based on a composite of goal lines), the U.S. still shut down respected Sweden with a 16-7 edge in shots, a 4-2 advantage in shots on goal, a 5-2 mark in corner kicks, and a possession edge of 62 percent to 38 percent. That, with Alex Morgan sitting out the second half.

Spain must find a way to launch meaningful shots at net. U.S. opponents have failed thus far, with a grand total of five shots on goal through three games. In Spain's 1-0 loss to powerful Germany (its most comparable opponent to the U.S. based on pre-tournament futures prices), it could only manage two shots on goal despite 16 launches and a 59-41 percent possession advantage.
